

WANTED

Back in 1999, a rag-tag group of friends joined together to compete in the annual Colgate Country Showdown.

Dan, Andy, Sandy, Joe and their friend Jared Comastro called themselves 'What Exit', a goof on a Jersey saying. With only one song under their belt, they made it to the local leg of the contest and got to play at WXTU's Annual Anniversary Show. After the contest was over, they walked away with second place... not good enough to continue in the contest, but enough to realize that they had something. Thinking nothing of it, the group disbanded.

The next year, Dan somehow convinced Joe to get back playing as lead guitarist and Bill joined the group as the drummer. Sandy returned shortly after to play rhythm guitar. After his (very) short lived stint in Oregon, Andy came back to New Jersey and then picked up a bass to join with the group.

In May of 2002, the band got together to write their first original and decided that it was good enough to try the Colgate Country Showdown once again. Even though they came up short in the contest, the band won the ears of a few bar owners and the XTU radio station. Within a few months, the band was steadily booked for bars and events all over the tri-state region.

In 2006 WANTED released their debut album CD by Six Shooter Entertainment, 10 songs:

A compilation of the first few years of the band coming together in one package. Ten songs written from the sexy She's the Devil to the hard-rocking title track To Be Wanted.

Today:
